Charles Cavanagh is a trial lawyer and a member of the firm's Litigation and Labor & Employment Practice Groups. Mr. Cavanagh has extensive experience litigating in both federal and state trial and appellate courts, as well as resolving disputes through binding arbitration. While Mr. Cavanagh's practice focuses on defending clients against labor and employment claims, he has handled matters involving several different areas of the law, including false advertising allegations, construction defect claims, intellectual property protection, and commercial contract disputes. Mr. Cavanagh prides himself on being able to guide his clients effectively throughout the litigation process, including taking matters to trial and through appeals when appropriate. Mr. Cavanagh also has experience counseling clients with respect to labor and employment matters, including formulation of employee handbooks, conducting workplace investigations, termination procedures, and litigation avoidance strategies.

Mr. Cavanagh is admitted to both the Colorado and California bars. After a decade of practicing law in California, he moved to Colorado and joined Messner Reeves, where he often assists with the California needs of the firm's clients, while continuing to develop his own trial and appellate practices. Mr. Cavanagh has significant courtroom experience, including first-chair trial experience, in both states.

When he is not in the office, Mr. Cavanagh likes to enjoy the Colorado outdoors with his wife and son through hiking, cycling, and skiing. Mr. Cavanagh and his family also love to experience other cultures through travel.
